Association of American Feed Control Officials offers pet food labeling workshop

AAFCO Pet and Specialty Pet Food Labeling Workshop focuses on understanding and interpreting regulations and claims

The Association of American Feed Control Officials (AAFCO) is hosting a second AAFCO Pet and Specialty Pet Food Labeling Workshop, primarily for pet food production and marketing professionals, in conjunction with their annual meeting in Anaheim, California.

“With an ever increasing number of pet foods lining the shelves, providing purchasers with clear and consistent labeling information to assist them in making informed decisions for their pets’ nutritional needs is more important than ever,” said Kristen Green, AAFCO Pet Food Committee Vice Chair.

To that end, the day-and-a-half workshop will help industry professionals understand and interpret AAFCO model regulations related to the labeling of pet food and related products such as treats and supplements. The workshop will cover the basics and delve into more complex issues related to product claims.

This is an opportunity to improve essential skills, network with regulators and others in the field, and get hands-on experience dealing with complex labeling issues. The workshop will be held immediately following the mid-year AAFCO meeting at the Hyatt Regency Orange County on January 24 and 25. About AAFCO

The Association of American Feed Control Officials (AAFCO) is a voluntary membership association of local, state, and federal agencies charged by law to regulate the sale and distribution of animal feeds and animal drug remedies.

Although AAFCO has no regulatory authority, the association provides a forum for the membership and industry representation to achieve these goals: safeguarding the health of animals and humans, ensuring consumer protection, and providing a level playing field of orderly commerce for the animal feed industry. These goals are achieved by developing and implementing uniform and equitable laws, regulations, standards, definitions, and enforcement policies for regulating the manufacture, labeling, distribution, and sale of animal feeds—resulting in safe, effective, and useful feeds by promoting uniformity among member agencies.

About AAFCO's Pet Food Committee

The AAFCO Pet Food Committee works cooperatively with the FDA, the pet food industry, and other stakeholders to monitor, review, and recommend appropriate revisions to the AAFCO Official Publication as related to pet food and specialty pet food and suggest additional activities, when such are needed, to more effectively (1) provide protection for the consumer and the regulated industry; (2) safeguard the health of humans and animals; (3) provide a structure for orderly commerce; and (4) provide recommendations and assistance for training, workshops, and educational materials regarding pet food and specialty pet food.
